Italians Warned of Attacks Soon: Rome Curfew

A RADIO warning to the Italians that the Allied air offensive against their ports and other targets will soon be resumed was given on Saturday night.

Last night Rome radio reported the imposition of a curfew from 10.30 p.m. till 5 a.m., to be broken only in the event of air raids.

Breathing Space Over

The following message from General Eisenhower's H.Q. was broadcast to Italy on Saturday night:—

"Italians, to-night we send you a solemn warning. Listen carefully and tell your friends to listen, for what we say affects the lives of every one of you. Six days have passed since you overthrew Mussolini. In those six days the Italian people have achieved much.

"Italians, you know that on July 25 we let up our aerial bombardment. We were trying to give Italy a breathing space in which to unite for peace and freedom. But the Germans have used that breathing space to strengthen their position.

"And for that the full, the sole responsibility rests on the new Government in Rome.

"The breathing space is over. Be prepared. Soon the air offensive will begin again in earnest by day and by night.

"In your own interests keep away from the ports, the railways, the depôts and barracks."

Rome radio reported that from last night a curfew from 10.30 p.m. to 5 a.m. would be imposed for the Rome district.

"This applies to every citizen without exception," the radio said. "In case of an air raid people may go to their shelters, and when the raid is over they must return to their homes by the shortest way."

The first Italian reaction to the Allied announcement that air bombing will be resumed was given by the Italian News Agency, which stated:—"In war it is decisive acts that count, not threats. National unity is necessary to help the Badoglio Government to face the tremendous responsibility of the hour and cope with the bitter difficulties of the present situation.

"This is the hour of military authority, which is strictly limited to the time it takes Pietro Badoglio to put an end to the present war with honour and dignity, and avoid civil war with its blind fury.

"At the end of the first week of the military régime the Italian people and forces are convinced that the war continues, and that the future is sombre."

Under an order of the Badoglio Government, all Italians of the 1927-1942 classes who have not yet been called up must present themselves for enrolment between now and next Sunday.

Rome radio announced on Saturday that Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, had resigned the post of Ambassador to the Vatican. King Victor accepted his resignation.

The Pope has also seen Federzoni, President of the Italian Senate.—(Reuter.)

More 550 'Planes Raid Seven Airfields

NEARLY 550 R.A.F. Spitfires, as well as American Thunderbolts and medium and fighter-bombers of both Air Forces, concentrated on bombing German airfields on Saturday, the eighth day of the non-stop Anglo-U.S. air offensive.

Attacks were launched against aerodromes at Poix, Merville, Tricqueville and Abbeville by U.S. medium bombers, and at St Omer, Amiens and Lille by R.A.F. medium and fighter-bombers. Two Axis fighters were destroyed during the operations and one Allied medium bomber and two fighters are missing. Runways and aircraft dispersal areas were seen to be hit. Opposition was slight, says Press Association.

On Friday night R.A.F. bombers made a heavy attack on a new target—Remscheid, key machine and precision tools town of about 107,000 people, south of the Ruhr. The attack lasted for 25 minutes and fires had a good hold before the end of the raid.

Fifteen Allied bombers are missing and two fighters from intruder patrols over France and Holland.

GERMAN RAIDS

A German aircraft was destroyed during small-scale raids on Britain on Saturday night. Raiders trying to cross the south-east coast shortly after midnight met what was considered to be the heaviest A.A. barrage of the war.

A British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué stated: "There was slight enemy activity over coastal districts of East Anglia. Bombs were dropped at one place. Only slight damage and no casualties have been reported. One enemy aircraft was destroyed."

Low-Level Raid on Oil Refineries

A special communiqué issued by H.Q. of the 9th U.S. Air Force said: "A powerful force of Liberators of the 9th U.S.A.A.F. carried out a low-level attack on the oil refineries in the Ploesti area of Rumania in daylight today.

"A great weight of bombs was dropped on vital targets at less than 500 feet. Full details are not available yet, but initial reports testify to the success of the raid."—(Reuter.)

BIG ALLIED BOMBINGS IN PACIFIC

ALLIED bombers have sunk more than 14 Japanese invasion barges off New Britain and New Guinea, and dealt fresh blows near Munda, in the Solomons area, says Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, S.W. Pacific.

In New Georgia, where the Americans are using tanks and flame-throwers in their advance, large formations of bombers and dive-bombers, with fighter escort, dropped 52 tons of torpedoes and bombs on gun positions at Bibolo, Hill, a mile and a half north-east of Munda airfield. Thirty Japanese fighters, which attempted to interfere, were driven off.

"In the action centred around Munda, New Georgia, and Salamaua, New Guinea," said an official statement, "the combined Allied forces shot down 436 Japanese 'planes, sank three cruisers, 15 destroyers, one submarine-chaser, one seaplane tender, 11 merchantmen and at least 62 barges. Our losses were relatively light, consisting of 118 'planes, one cruiser and two destroyers."

BURMA "AT WAR"

Mitchell medium bombers of the 10th U.S. Air Force on Saturday made five direct hits on a river boat of unusually large size on the Irrawaddy, says yesterday's U.S.A.F. communiqué, quoted by Reuter. A medium-sized boat and a big barge were also hit. During an attack on the Bhamo area a big warehouse and many smaller ones were left on fire.

The Japanese News Agency stated yesterday that the Burmese State Assembly yesterday announced:—"Burma has declared war on the U.S.A. and Great Britain." "At the same time," it added, "the Axis Powers and neutral countries have been notified of Burmese independence."

Allies Extend Bridgeheads in Sicily: U.S. Take Towns

FOLLOWING are yesterday's communiqués on the fighting in Sicily:—

ALLIED.—Bridgeheads were further extended and established on the front of the Eighth Army. The American 7th Army has captured three towns, about five kilometres beyond Saturday's positions.

GERMAN.—The enemy continued his efforts to break through in the central sector in mobile fighting our troops frustrated the enemy intentions, inflicting upon him heavy losses in personnel and material. On the northern and southern fronts, too, all enemy attacks collapsed. Fast bombers dispersed enemy motorised formations and put a.-a. guns out of action.

ITALIAN.—There was bitter fighting on Saturday... In the Regaibuto area violent and repeated enemy attacks were repulsed. Enemy naval formations shelled localities along the Tyrrhenian and Ionian coasts of Calabria. No great damage was done.

CRISIS NEAR

A message received from Allied H.Q. this morning stated that the American forces have captured nine key towns in the Germans' north coast defences, one of them two miles from San Stefano.

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Headquarters, North Africa, states—British and American troops, facing desperate resistance by Axis forces, are moving forward all along the 60-mile front, stretching from the north coast of Sicily to the east coast south of Catania. Heavy fighting is expected in the next few days. Indications here are that a crisis cannot be long delayed.

The American 7th Army, after capturing nine more towns and ironing out the salient in their lines in the north, are now within 75 miles of Messina. The British 8th Army is 65 miles from this port in the north-eastern tip of the island.

Algiers Radio reported yesterday: "Pressure on Catania is increasing hourly. The Canadians are now fighting in the hills overlooking the Catanain plain. Axis resistance was said to be still increasing.

STRONG POSITIONS

Reuter's correspondent adds that in the fierce fighting on the Catania line the 8th Army has inflicted heavy casualties on the Axis. German positions in this area are almost impregnable, with gun batteries and observation posts overlooking the plain from the slopes of Etna.

The 8th Army is engaged in a hard, slogging match over a no man's land sown with mines and obstacles of all kinds.

The Germans are also offering strong resistance to the advance of General Patton's forces. American 7th Army troops now hold Sperlinga, four miles north-west of Nicosia, and after crossing the Pollina Valley have captured San Mauro Castelverde, seven miles east of Castelbuono and 12 miles south-west of San Stefano.

The land campaign has entered its fourth week, with the Germans still falling back before the Americans and Canadians towards their last defences in the north-eastern corner of the island.

GOOD PROGRESS

The road east to Randazzo, and thence south to the main Catania-Messina coast road, or north by a second-class track to the northern coast road, provides the only supply route from Messina, with the exception of the two coast roads. The American troops have been making particularly good time along this inland highway, taking the stiffening German resistance into account.

The 500 Germans, who formed over half of the 941 prisoners taken by the Americans in the northern sector on Friday, were for the most part from the fresh 29th Panzer Grenadiers.

Between the American forces pushing along the coast road and those operating along the inland road from Nicosia, French troops (Moroccan Goums) are fighting in the mountains.

It was disclosed yesterday that twenty-five airfields, landing strips and seaplane bases in Sicily are now in Allied hands. Some of the captured airfields, such as Birozzo, Ponte Olivio, Castelvetrano, Comiso and Milo, have runways a mile long, and can take heavy bombers. Other important aerodromes are at Biscari, Boccadifalco and Sciacca.

NAVY SHELLING

The German News Agency reported last night that an Allied cruiser off the north coast of Sicily shelled German defensive positions on Saturday morning.

"German bombers took off immediately and headed the cruiser off," added the Agency. "The shelling itself did no substantial damage, as cover on this rocky Sicilian coast is exceptionally good.

"Further attempts to bombard German troops on the east coast with naval artillery also proved a failure owing to the swift counteraction taken by German battle aircraft, which bombed so accurately that several enemy naval units, including a destroyer, were damaged."

Fritz Dettman, German overseas news agency war correspondent, stated that heavy naval guns played a big part in assuring the success of the Allied landings in Sicily. Their supporting fire, he said, was at some points so strong that the defenders had to withdraw to positions out of their reach. Those who watched the development of the Sicilian invasion recognised that never before had a similar enterprise been so systematically planned and tactically prepared with such thoroughness down to the last detail, he added.

General Eisenhower's air communiqué yesterday stated that medium bombers on Saturday attacked the communications centre of Adrano and road junctions behind the Axis lines. Light bombers attacked Axis positions and fighters continued their sweeps and patrols.—(Reuter and P.A.)

Vichy Radio reported last night that the Eighth Army had received important reinforcements, and was intensifying its assault on the Catania sector.

Maisky's Successor

M. Maisky, new Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, is likely to take over a most important post in the Soviet Foreign Office, Reuter cables from Moscow. M. Feodor Gusef, Soviet Minister to Canada, will succeed M. Maisky as Soviet Ambassador in London.

JAPAN'S OFFER TO CHINA

THE Japanese High Command Press Chief declared yesterday that Japan would be prepared to withdraw her forces from the whole of China and collaborate with Chungking "if the latter ceases resistance and links up with the rest of Eastern Asia," says the German News Agency.—(Reuter.)

This large crater in D'Olier street was caused by the burst main.

BURST MAIN CAUSES HEAVY FLOODING

WHEN a 27-inch arterial main burst in D'Olier street, Dublin, at 1.30 a.m. yesterday a thick stream of water shot through the centre of the roadway, and gushed twenty feet into the air, hurling rocks, stones, paving blocks—and oyster shells!—many yards away.

A passer-by gave the alarm, but by the time it was possible for the Corporation Waterworks Department to turn off the main thousands of gallons of water had poured into Fleet street, flooding basements and cellars and causing wooden paving blocks over an area of twenty yards square to jump out of their places. By 2 a.m. a wall of water had poured into Messrs. Bowes' premises and nearby buildings. Much of it flowed through a pavement grating into the basement of the Irish Times office. Porters on their nightly rounds in the office reported the flooding at once, and it was found that water had filled a subterranean storeroom to a depth of between six and eight feet. Normally the room is used to store felt for packing.

Fortunately it was virtually empty yesterday morning, but the water flooded through into another subterranean chamber which contains a stand-by Diesel oil engine, and tests showed that the water was rising at the rate of three feet per hour. At one time it was estimated that there were 20,000 gallons of water in the Irish Times premises. For a time the rotary room was threatened, and valuable rolls of newsprint had to be quickly moved out of the path of the floods.

A section of the fire brigade, under the direction of Station Officer Kelly, laid down suction hoses from a portable A.R.P. pump-tender, and from 4 a.m. to after 6 a.m. water was pumped out of the Irish Times building at the rate of 120 gallons per minute.

Throughout yesterday and last night D'Olier street-Fleet street was cordoned off and men from the Waterworks Department of the Corporation were busy repairing the damaged main. The street has had to be closed to 'bus traffic.

Average U.C.D. Student Cannot Speak Irish

"Despite all official assurances to the contrary, the average student comes to University College, Dublin, without sufficient Irish to carry on even a simple conversation.

"Apart from the efforts of a small minority, the general attitude of the students towards Irish is one of cynicism and dislike."

These statements are contained in a report issued by a committee of five U.C.D. professors appointed in May last by the Academic Council to examine what could best be done to promote Irish in the University.

The student, states the report, could not be encouraged to revise his attitude by fresh doses of compulsion, with which he had apparently already been surfeited, and the only hope of stimulating his interest in the use of Irish and in Irish culture was organisation on a voluntary basis.

The report contains a number of recommendations, which include: Replacement of present obligatory oral examination in Irish by an examination of a much higher standard, carrying with it a diploma for such students as wish to receive official recognition of their competence in spoken Irish; expansion of existing classes in oral Irish, which should henceforth be on voluntary basis; appointment of a director of spoken Irish to organise and supervise all present and future schemes to spread the use of Irish among the students; forging of closer relations between the University and the Gaeltacht by granting Gaeltacht scholarships, eventually establishing a special Irish college for students and bringing native speakers to Dublin during the term time; giving two courses of popular public lectures annually, one in Irish and one in English, on various aspects of Gaelic civilisation; the services of the University to be made known to the general public; special subjects for students in Celtic Studies group; application to be made for a special Government grant to defray expenses, the work being outside the normal functions of a university.

Any general attempt to provide University education through the medium of Irish would, under present circumstances, be disastrous to educational standards in the University and of no benefit to Irish, it is stated. Until the University could be staffed by scholars and attended by students whose home language had always been Irish could there be any reasonable prospect of giving degree courses through Irish without lowering the general standard.

Britain Warns Neutrals

THE British Government warned the Vatican, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Argentina and Turkey against harbouring Mussolini or other war criminals in a Note published on Saturday night.

Issued in concurrence with the American and Russian Governments, the Note said:—

"In view of developments in Italy and the possibility that Mussolini and other prominent Fascists and persons guilty of war crimes may attempt to take refuge in neutral territory, H.M. Government in the United Kingdom feel obliged to call upon all countries to refuse asylum to any such persons, and to declare that they will regard any shelter, assistance, or protection given to such persons as a violation of the principles for which the United Nations are fighting and which they are determined to carry into effect by every means in their power."

M. Enrico Celio, the Swiss President, stated yesterday in Berne on the occasion of the Swiss national holiday:—

"The hope that peace is imminent, or at least has been brought nearer, is premature, despite recent events.

"We are living in the middle of a giant fortress—free, but surrounded by the burning rings of fighting peoples.

"We are lucky enough to have a good, I should almost like to say, an excellent, apparatus of defence, if it were permitted to use superlatives in military questions. As far as military resistance is concerned, we are prepared for any eventuality."—(Reuter.)

Big Crowds in Holiday Trek from Dublin

RAILWAY officials, sweating under an avalanche of trunks, cases, bicycles—and small children—asserted over the week-end that it was their "worst August holiday ever." The chief reason for the transport chaos was that no attempt whatsoever was made this year to stagger workers' holidays.

The rush started early on Saturday.

At Amiens street a large part of the platform was occupied by hundreds of bicycles, with specially appointed officials in charge to ensure that the machines, which could not travel with their owners, would be sent on by later trains. At a special bureau questions were answered about 'buses, trains, taxis and hotels.

Between Kingsbridge and Westland row over 4,000 people were sent away—many of them travelling coatless and hatless, and standing in the corridors—and most of them went to Wexford, Cork and Kerry. Over 6,000 were despatched from Amiens street, chiefly to Donegal resorts and to Belfast, for Portrush, Bangor and Donaghadee. Several hundreds more than usual were taken to the Southern counties by 'buses, after they had queued at Aston's quay for many hours. Many people began to queue at 2 a.m., and some of them got their 'buses at 4 p.m.

The strands at Dollymount, Merrion, Malahide, Portmarnock, Skerries, Killiney, Bray and Greystones were packed. Last night many "near home" holiday-makers finished the first leg of their holidays by walking back from the seaside to their homes.

Dun Laoghaire hotels and boarding houses are experiencing a boom period, many visitors coming from the North of Ireland. The Civic Guards are kept busy issuing ration cards for tea, sugar and butter, and thousands of these cards are being issued weekly. Hotels in Dublin are also doing remarkably good business.

SOVIETS NEAR RAIL LINK AT OREL

DESPITE stubborn German resistance and torrential rains which have turned the ground into a quagmire, the Russians have made further progress on the Orel front, Reuter's Special Correspondent cables from Moscow.

He adds: "In contrast to the orderly withdrawals in the early days of the offensive, the Germans are now burning or abandoning stores as they retreat."

Bid to Take Bridgehead

"The devastation left in the wake of the German retreat in the Orel sector is appalling; the Russians captured not 500 villages, but 500 deserts," a Soviet correspondent states.

The Germans have thrown two full Panzer divisions into the fighting on the Donetz front in a new bid to recapture the bridgehead recently established by the Red Army on the west bank of the Mius River, 40 miles S.W. of Voroshilovgrad. Attacks—made at several points simultaneously — are growing in force, Soviet front despatches stated yesterday. Latest official information is that repeated German counter-attacks were repulsed.

The battle for Mga, key station on the Leningrad front, has died down for the moment.

COMMUNIQUE

Yesterday's German communiqué stated: "Activity was again on a reduced scale, with the exception of fighting in the Orel salient. On the Mius front our troops, supported by strong bomber formations of the Luftwaffe, went over to the counter-attack. A strong Soviet group was encircled and annihilated. In the Byelgorod area local enemy attacks failed. South of Lake Ladoga enemy attacks were less intensive. The Soviets on Saturday lost 217 tanks on the whole of the Eastern front; 7,110 tanks have been destroyed since July 5."

The German News Agency said that on the south wing of the Kuban front, Jaegers took an important height in the Caucasian foothills, and two Soviet rifle brigades were wiped out.

Last night's Soviet communiqué states:—"During yesterday our troops in the Orel direction advanced 5 to 8 miles, and occupied more than 100 inhabited localities. In the Byelgorod direction there was reconnaissance activity. In the Doubas our troops continued to repel enemy attacks. On the Leningrad front there was reconnaissance activity."

NEAR RAIL LINK

Heavy fighting broke out yesterday near the Orel-Briansk railway line, towards which Soviet forces have advanced further during the past 24 hours, Reuter reports in a late cable last night.

The Diplomatic Corps is shortly to return to Moscow from Kubishev, where it has been in residence since October, 1941, when the Germans were threatening Moscow.—(Reuter.)

"No Compromise" Says Dr. Ryan

"In future," said Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, at a Fianna Fail victory meeting in Wexford yesterday, "we mean to go on with our own programme, as long as the Dail permits us, but if the Dail wants us to compromise they can throw us out." Concluding, Dr. Ryan said: "If we come up against an adverse vote, we will say to the Opposition—let you form a Government, or, if you prefer it, we will go to the country again. I am not saying we must have a general election before the five years are up, but we may have it."

Fianna Fail, he added, had good reason to be satisfied with the result of the election, because a Government that had been in office eleven years had the knack of making enemies and losing support, while papers like the Irish Times and others blamed the Government for everything that went wrong. He challenged contradiction of a statement made by him during the election that this country was better supplied with meat, milk, butter, sugar and bread, the five chief foods, than any other country in Europe to-day, with the exception of bread in England.

Replying to some charges which had been made against him personally, Dr. Ryan added: "At the Military Tribunal I said on oath that to the best of my knowledge I never met Stephen Hayes. I was swearing what was true. Friends of mine told me I was a fool to have said that, and that I should have said I did meet him. Why should I say that when I was sworn to tell the truth?"

Customs Post Robbed

In the early hours of Saturday morning the Eire Customs post at Kildrum, on the Letterkenny-Derry route, was forcibly entered and a quantity of butter, tobacco, chocolate and and other goods, as well as cash, taken away. The goods stolen had been seized the previous day from Six County people returning from holidays. When Customs officials arrived for duty at 4 a.m. they found that an iron bar had been wrenched from across the window and the goods missing.

Dublin Golf Club Gutted

The buildings of the Royal Dublin Golf Club were gutted by fire which broke out at four o'clock this morning. The fire brigade were unable to use their hose for an hour, owing to the lack of a hydrant and as the tide at the rear of the premises was at its lowest. The hoses were then connected with the tramway line hydrant, a mile away, and by this time the flames virtually had obtained control of the buildings, which included the residence of the club professional, Paddy Mahon. He was awakened by his wife, and they managed to evacuate their four children, whose ages range from five years to six months.

The caretaker, Charles Morris, was awakened by the cries of his cat, and he succeeded with his wife and the club staff, numbering about ten, in vacating their quarters and in removing their furniture and other property.

The club showrooms, the professional's workshop, three hundred lockers and over three hundred golf clubs and balls were also lost.

The caretaker notified the fire brigade, having had to run a mile to a 'phone kiosk.

It is estimated that over 300 trophies, valued at over £500, were lost in the fire. Paddy Mahon managed to save two of his most valuable prizes and clubs. An important tournament was arranged to be held on the course on the 12th of the present month.

At half past five all that remained of the club-house were the four chimney-stacks. The roofs and the remaining portion of the premises had collapsed.

Help for the Harvest

A recommendation has been made by the Department of Agriculture to local authorities to release the greatest possible number of their workers for harvest work. Farmers should notify their requirements to the Assistant County Surveyor for their area.

The Army authorities have agreed that farmers may arrange with individual soldiers in their district to assist in harvesting, during off hours, and provided civilians are not thereby deprived of employment. Farmers who have difficulty in obtaining local labour should get in touch with the Local Employment Exchange, when they will be put in touch with such workers as may be available.

The summer and autumn vacation periods of rural schools may be arranged to suit the special needs of particular localities. Rural National Schools may be closed, up to ten days, to enable school children to help with harvest work.

Gaelic League Criticism of Step-Together Concert

GAELIC League delegates, at their jubilee congress in Dublin on Saturday, criticised a recent Army Step-Together concert in Galway.

They complained that there was tap-dancing instead of Gaelic dancing, songs such as "Rose Marie," "The Old Bull and Bush" and "Mick McGilligan's Daughter Mary Anne," while the No. 4 Army Band devoted 45 minutes to "foreign music" and ignored Irish compositions.

Gearoid O Broin, Dublin, said the promoters would have welcomed a contribution from him if he had agreed not to sing in Irish, which was completely boycotted. Other delegates assailed the L.D.F. and the L.S.F. for sponsoring "English dances."

Congress decided that it was "a great scandal that the Department of Defence should permit the Army to promote proceedings, such as concerts, where only English activity was practised, as happened in Galway during Step-Together Week."

Later, a motion to rescind a rule that League members who took part in, or were present at, "foreign games" or "foreign dances," be not selected on any committee, was defeated.

Congress also resolved to ask the Minister for Education to ensure that University professors have no connection with Ard Teastas examinations in future.

HITTING OUT

Saying that the Gaelic League would continue to support compulsory Irish "while there was evidence that such was the best method," Diarmuid MacFhionnlaoich, who was re-appointed President of the organisation, declared: "Those leaving school to-day are more advanced in every subject than those leaving thirty years ago." The League would accept any change that would improve the language position, but, up to the present, examination results were in favour of the present method.

He said that the organisation had shown that it was the settled policy of the governing body of the National University to keep Irish suppressed while trying to get all the money they could for themselves in the name of Gaelic activity. The Universities, especially the U.C.D., were denying education through Irish to Irish speakers, just as had been done in the time of Elizabeth, and the Legislature and the followers of the political parties, who had not sufficient courage to end the "scandal," were mainly to blame.

DAIL SPEECH

In the Dail, said Mr. MacFhionnlaoich, Mr. James Dillon had said: "Since the Gaelic League was taken over by a political organisation and made the toe-rag of every political chancer in Ireland the language has suffered deeply from its association with the Gaelic League. Decent men do not want to be associated with the kind of lunatics who use the Gaelic League for every rotten purpose to which they can put what was once an honoured name, and what's now a byword for chicanery and fraud . . . Unless we can raise the whole language movement above the disgusting standard set by that contemptible body, the language is dead. I still nurse a faint hope that it may be in the joint power of us to do that."

Mr. MacFhionnlaoich continued: "I understand Seamusin well, but I do not understand the Irishmen who elected him."

The secretaries in their report stated that nothing further would be heard about the University incident and that the League would be satisfied to let something similar happen again were mistaken.

Sprint Course Record at Leopardstown

MRS. D. FRAME'S filed, a probable runner for the Phœnix Plate next week-end, enhanced her chances in the Phœnix Park race by gaining a one sided victory in the Sugar Loaf Plate on Saturday at Leopardstown, in which she made a speedy beginning and led throughout to beat Tabrik by five lengths.

Camfield set up a course record when he covered five furlongs in the Silverpark Plate in 58 1-5 secs., and won comfortably from Acrostic and Shanny Star. The latter twisted a plate and will not run in the Scalp Plate to-day.

Northern Swimmers to the Fore

(BY P. D. MacWEENEY.)

THOSE who came to Blackrock Baths on Saturday evening, expecting to see E. McCartney improve on his record-breaking times of last year in the first session of the Irish Championship Swimming Gala, were disappointed. The Belfast man, who has taken his degrees at Queen's University since then, has had little opportunity for training in the course of the last twelve months, and no swimmer can maintain top form without consistent, hard practice. McCartney retained the two free-style titles which were up for competition on Saturday, the 100 yards and the 440 yards, but his times were 2 4-5 secs. and 30 1-5 secs., respectively, worse than his records of last year.

In each case he won with something to spare, so it is obvious that Irish men's free-style swimming has shown no advance in the course of the last year.

In the 100 yards he was just behind Lt. H. O'Neill to the turn, but on the second lap he went straightaway into the lead, and with his customary fine finishing burst he won by three yards. Another Belfast man, W. H. Bell, gave him a good contest in the 440 yards, but while Bell frequently made up ground in the laps he lost it on the turns, and once again McCartney's speed over the final 50 yards decided the issue. It is a point worth noting, however, that the necessity for having heats over this testing distance must have imposed a severe physical strain on the competitors. While there was never any question of W. J. A. Lowry's win in the 100 yards back stroke, the Queen's University man improved on last year's time by nearly a second. The new champion

MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1943.

"A Solemn Warning"

A week has passed since Signor Mussolini resigned his post as head of the Italian Government, and the diplomatic position has remained virtually unchanged since Marshal Badoglio assumed office. The disappearance of the Fascist Party as an organisation was a logical development of the Duce's fall. Without him the party ceased to have any significance, and, now that Count Ciano has resigned from the Italian Embassy to the Vatican City, a clean sweep has been made of the men who ruled Italy for twenty-one years. Yet there is no sign of peace. On the contrary, Allied reports from Sicily tell of increasing resistance all along the sixty-mile front. It seems that the Germans have been able to reinforce their armoured divisions in the island; and the Italian bulletin yesterday referred to "bitter fighting." The fighting now has entered its fourth week. Catania still is holding out against continuous and violent attacks. It is protected by strong gun emplacements on the slopes of Mount Etna, and, although the Canadians are said to have reached the hills overlooking the Catanian plains, coming from the west, the Italo-German garrison continues to offer stiff resistance. On the other hand, the American Seventh Army, operating along the northern coast, has captured three more towns since Saturday, advancing five kilometres towards Messina, from which it now is only about seventy-five miles. Germans and Italians alike are fighting stubbornly, and every yard of ground that has been gained by the Americans has been contested. In a further broadcast to the Italian people on Saturday General Eisenhower gave them "a solemn warning." He reminded them that the Allies had "let up" on aerial bombardment on July 25th, in order to give Marshal Badoglio a chance to sue for peace; but the new Government merely had temporised. In these circumstances, the general declared, the breathing space must come to an end. He advised the Italians to evacuate all places of military importance. Evidently, the British and Americans intend to resume their air raids on metropolitan Italy. The Italian communiqué yesterday reported naval attacks on parts of the Ionian and Tyrrhenian coasts of Calabria, and there is every reason to suppose that General Eisenhower's threat is intended to be taken seriously. The British Government also has taken a step of some importance. It has addressed a warning to seven neutral States—the Vatican City, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland, Sweden, the Argentine, and Turkey—informing them that the grant of asylum to Signor Mussolini or any other prominent members of the Fascist Party will be regarded by the Allies as a violation of the principles for which the war is being fought, and reinforcing the statement that was made on the same subject in Washington by President Roosevelt some days ago. The position of the new Italian Government at the moment is exceedingly difficult, and the fact that no reply has been received by the Allies from Marshal Badoglio to their repeated demands for "unconditional surrender" is significant. On Friday last it was announced by Rome Radio that the Italian people were considering the Allied conditions "with intelligence"; but since then there has been silence. Marshal Badoglio has committed himself to nothing since he announced that "the war continues"; and there, for the time being, apparently, the matter must be allowed to rest.

The Old, Old, Story

Will there never be any sense in this Gaelic business? The Gaelic League Jubilee Congress in Dublin on Saturday seems to have made the hope still more remote. Delegates criticised a recent Step-Together concert in Galway, on the grounds that the programme had included tap-dancing, English songs, and forty-five minutes of "foreign music" by an Army band; and it was declared to be "a great scandal that the Department of Defence should permit the Army to promote proceedings, such as concerts, where only English activity was practised." The answer is, no doubt, that at the moment the Department of Defence has its hands full of serious business, and that it is more concerned that the men should step together than worried because they do so to the tune of "Mick McGilligan's Daughter, Mary Anne." The soldier can be ordered to march, but he will sing what he likes. His action is none the less noble if he goes to the defence of his country singing "Waltzing Matilda." It is its descent to such petty squabble that makes ridiculous the whole proceedings of the Gaelic League. Such a spoil-sport policy is better calculated to damage than to assist the revival of the Irish language; and indeed it is regrettable that genuine enthusiasts should be so short-sighted as to bring their own movement thus into contempt. Is a man a worse hurler because he goes to see a Rugby match? Is he a worse Irishman because he whistles "The Lincolnshire Poacher"—or, indeed, plays Elgar? One might as well impugn his patriotism because he likes Yorkshire pudding. The true Irishman, by Gaelic League standards, must practise such a single-minded devotion to the ideal as could only be achieved within the walls of a sort of Gaelic monastery. If the Irish language is ever to assume any importance, the proposals for its revival must be related to reality. It is useless to map out a programme for a nation of fanatics. The nation happens to be composed of solid, ordinary people, who will give their support to the language movement only if it fits itself to the established contour of their lives. Any missionary knows that one does not bring civilisation by compelling people to wear bowler hats.

A realistic approach to the matter is shown in the report, which will be found elsewhere in our columns, of the five professors of University College, Dublin, who were appointed last May by the Academic Council to consider methods of promoting Irish in the university. The general attitude of the students to the language is described as "one of cynicism and dislike," and it is added that they "could not be encouraged to revise their attitude by fresh doses of compulsion, with which, apparently, they had already been surfeited." That is a plain statement of the existing situation. No doubt, the members of the committee will be attacked by the Gaelic Leaguers, who will discover that the whole report is coloured by their own "cynicism and dislike" for the language. The common argument of a loser is an attack on the umpire. The Gaelic League, in the words of its President, will continue to support compulsion "while there is evidence that such is the best method." The emphatic declaration of the U.C.D. professors in favour of purely voluntary methods will not, one presumes, be taken in evidence at all. Certainly, the opinion of the Irish national school teachers was not considered. One might say, perhaps, of the League: Is é bodhar ut Laoghaire atá air. We are convinced, however, that time will show that compulsion was wrong. We are equally convinced that common-sense will show that the League cannot expect to breed model Irishmen, like a laboratory rabbit, in a glass jar; that Irish culture, like any other culture, must be given the chance to profit by outside influences, or it will be doomed to stagnation; and that it is more criminal to kill a language by kindness than to let it die of neglect.

DROGHEDA FIRE ENGINE TRAGEDY

Seven years old Michael Moore stood near his home in Scarlet street, Drogheda, and watched his father, Michael Moore, senior, drive the municipal fire-engine off to a local fire. He waited patiently until the fire was out, and, as the heavy fire-engine returned, ran out into the street to greet his father. The engine struck him, knocking him to the ground unconscious. The father carried his son in his arms to the Drogheda Cottage Hospital, to find that he was dead. The inquest, in Drogheda on Saturday, was adjourned.

H.C.M.S. SECRETARY

The Rev. Martin Parsons, rector of St. Kevin's Church, Dublin, has accepted the unanimous invitation of the Committee of the Hibernian Church Missionary Society to take the position of General Secretary in succession to the Rev. WICKLOW MINES MAY RE-OPEN

Good prospects for re-opening the lead mines at Glendalough are referred to by Mr. L. C. Wynne, chief mining engineer of the Minerals Exploration and Development Company, in an article in the current number of "The Mining Magazine." These mines, he says, which are about 15 miles north-west of Avoca, produced large amounts of lead up to 1880. When lead fell to £11 a ton in 1880 the mines were closed.

At Glendalough some seven lodes were working by adits levels. By driving a new deep adit considerable "backs" can be developed below the known ore-bodies, and it is expected that many of the lodes left in the past may be found payable now, as the old miners only worked the richer pockets. Shortages, especially of explosives and trained miners, have so far prevented the Minerals Company from re-opening these mines, but it is intended to do so.

Mr. Wynne also states that it is hoped to explore the deposit of lead-zinc ores at Abbeytown, Co. Sligo, where some "flats" have been worked on a small scale in the past, and where there were favourable indications of finding large disseminated ore-bodies.

The possibility of working a flotation plant at the Avoca mines, reported some time ago in the Irish Times, is also referred to in the article, which says that preliminary flotation tests on some of the ores have given good results and the company hopes to erect a pilot flotation plant to treat 100 tons of ore daily, and eventually to enlarge the plant to 350 tons daily. These mines are being worked for the sulphur content of the ores, but a flotation plant would enable the company to extract copper, which in some ores is from 2 per cent. to 3 per cent., zinc which is from 3 per cent. to 10 per cent., and possibly small quantities of lead.

OBITUARY

HIS HONOUR I. G. WAKELY

The death occurred in Jamaica on Saturday, following a motor accident, of His Honour Ion George Wakely, son of the late Mr. W. G. Wakely, who was for fifty years Secretary of the Incorporated Law Society, and nephew of the late Judge Wakely. After an outstanding career at Trinity College, Dublin, he was called to the Bar in 1914, at the age of twenty-three. Immediately afterwards he joined the British Army, serving first in the Royal Artillery, and subsequently the Royal Army Service Corps. He was seriously wounded, and was awarded the Military Cross. When the war ended he joined the Colonial Service, and had a brilliant career in the West Indies. Some fifteen years ago he transferred to Jamaica, where he remained until his death at the age of fifty-two. He is survived by his wife and his sisters, Mrs. Vera CaldBeck and Mrs. Phyllis Johnson.

MR. MICHAEL CAREY

Mr. Michael Charles Carey, proprietor and editor of the Leinster Express, Maryborough, died on Saturday, aged 82 years. He was a son of the late Mr. Michael Charles Carey, who, some sixty years ago, became owner of the Express when it was disposed of by the Talbot family. Mr. Carey was an able journalist, an accomplished musician, and possessed of a strong sense of humour. In his early days he took a prominent part in the promotion of athletics, and was one of the founders of the Maryborough Cycling Club in 1881, probably the first club of the kind in Ireland.

TURF PRICE DOUBLES IN COUNTRY TOWNS

Country town residents in the turf-producing areas, who were in the happy position of being able to buy turf for about £1 a ton last winter, are likely to have to pay double that sum this coming winter. In County Clare, for example, where a fairly large amount of turf is produced, local authorities, recently considering tenders for amounts ranging from 60 to 100 tons to be supplied during the coming winter, have had to accept offers at an average rate of slightly more than £2 per ton. A large industrial concern in the same county which this time last year was paying £1 per ton has been paying 38s. per ton for some months past.

The reason given for the increase is the scarcity of labour and the difficulty of securing transport. In Dublin the price remains at 64s. per ton.

HOW FARMERS CAN GET THINGS DONE

"This is not the annual convention of a rigidly-bound organisation. There is nothing to be gained here—no seat in the Dail or Senate—but there is the real pleasure of seeing fellow-enthusiasts. Valuable as the formal work of the Rural Week is, the renewal of friendships and the exchange of ideas make up the most important part for us." This statement was made by Mr. P. J. Meghen, County Manager, Limerick, at the concluding session of Muintir na Tire Rural Week in Cork yesterday. In a paper, "Rural Life a Way of Life," Mr. Meghen said that rural life developed a sturdy independence of character, which many people had found to be a stumbling block when they wished to introduce new schemes, but it would be generally found that a farming community was not easily swept off its feet. "It is necessary to convince each single member before a scheme will be adopted," he said, "and I think it is better for the nation as a whole that the farmer is slow to change." Mr. Meghen added: "We in Muintir na Tire believe that we live in one of the few democratic States now left in the world. We believe that the things we think desirable will be accomplished when the people of rural Ireland realise the power of co-operative organisation to get things done."

FUNERAL

MR. M. O'KELLY

The funeral took place from the Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, to Glasnevin Cemetery of Mr. Matthew O'Kelly, Charleston road, Rathmines, brother of Mr. S. T. O'Kelly, An Tanaiste. The chief mourners were: Mrs. M. O'Kelly, widow; Mr. S. T. O'Kelly and Mr. C. O'Kelly, brothers; Miss M. O'Kelly, sister, and Mrs. S. T. O'Kelly.

FILM NOTES

By Our Cinema Correspondent.

Yankee Doodle Dandy (Adelphi). The name of George Michael Cohan, the great American showman, who died a few months ago, may not be familiar to many filmgoers in this country, but there can be few who have not enjoyed his numerous and successful melodies, such as "Mary is a Grand Old Name," "Only 45 Minutes from Broadway" and "Little Nellie Kelly." Cohan lived a vigorous life—he appeared in vaudeville with his parents when he was four, and sang and danced with their act until he was old enough to compose his own material and produce the spectacular, patriotic revues so popular with his own countrymen. In this old age he became a theatrical tradition in himself, and never lost his interest in the theatre. Some months before his death he gave his approval to Jack Warner's proposal to film his life, with James Cagney in the lead, and here is the result. Cagney gives a terrific performance as Cohan—energetic, resourceful, over-confident and patriotic. He makes alive for us this astounding personality, who was described as "the whole tortured country squeezed into one pair of pants," and he is well supported by an enormous cast. This film will be a thrilling experience for all who love the theatre, and, at heart, there can be few of us who do not.

The Meanest Man in the World (Metropole) gives us another chance to see that fine comedian, Jack Benny; but this time he is not too well served by his material. All the same, the lines are witty enough to induce you to overlook the childishness of one of the oldest plots on the screen. Edmund Gwenn, of all people, has a small and rather ridiculous part, while Priscilla Lane registers effectively as the heroine.

False Faces (Carlton) is a worthwhile re-issue of a very old gangster melodrama. Although the acting (particularly that of the women) seems uncomfortably laboured, the story is compelling, and Sam Woods's direction is, as usual, splendid. The sentiment is, at times, amusingly out of date, but the grim climax is just as effective as it was when the film was new.

Aerial Gunner (Royal) is yet another of those films dealing with acrobatic fun and games in the American Air Force, and is neither better nor worse than the others of its ilk. Chester Morris stars, and, needless to say, dies an heroic, if somewhat unnecessary, death at the fade out.

Those who missed Alfred Hitchcock's Shadow of a Doubt, on its previous runs, have still a chance to see this superb melodrama at the Grafton.

WHERE GAELIC LEAGUE WAS FOUNDED

"Ins an Arus so, 9 Sraid Ui Chonaill Iocht, bunuigheadh Conradh na Gaedhilge, 31 Iul, 1893" (In this building, No. 9 Lower O'Connell street, the Gaelic League was founded on 31st July, 1893)—so runs the inscription on a tablet which was unveiled yesterday on the front of the building in which the Gaelic League was founded fifty years ago.

Before the ceremony a procession, headed by a Girls' Pipe Band, marched from the League headquarters, Parnell Square, contingents taking part including members of different branches of the League, Cumann na mBan, Old I.R.A., Cumann na gCailini and Catholic Boy Scouts, with the City of Dublin Girls' Pipe Band, Dalkey Band and Catholic Scouts' Band.

The President of the League, Mr. D. Mac Fhionnlaoich, in a short address, said that from the teaching of the League the country had achieved the greatest freedom it had ever known for hundreds of years.

A message was relayed over the wireless to the gathering from the President of Eire, Dr. Douglas Hyde at Arus an Uachtarain. He and Mr. Eoin MacNeill are the only two surviving members of the founders. In his message the President said that many important things had happened in the last fifty years, and not the least was the founding of the Gaelic League. Irish was not a dead language, and they must speak it among themselves.

Mr. Eoin MacNeill, who performed the unveiling ceremony, said that the Irish language was part of their national heart, and if they abandoned it Ireland would be but a province.

The Gaelic League Choir sang a number of songs, after which the procession reformed and marched to St. Stephen's Green, where a short meeting was held before going to the Iveagh Grounds, where an Aeridheacht was held.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, SUNDAY NIGHT.

ONE of the many successful features of this summer's antidiphtheria campaign in Britain is a scheme of combined Ministry of Health and local authority press advertising. Under this arrangement the Ministry of Information inserts the Ministry of Health's official diphtheria advertisement in local newspapers selected by the local authorities, provided the authority buys additional space for a "tie-on" giving the times and places of local immunisation sessions. Only the cost of the "tie-on" is charged to the council. As a result of the vigorous efforts already made four million children have been immunised, but there are still the same number unprotected.

Prisoners on Land

Hundreds of prisoners from civilian jails and boys from Borstal institutions continue to give good service on the land. This scheme, started last year in a small way, turned out successfully, and although the men were unpaid they much preferred farm work to prison duties. This year farmers are paying normal farming rates, and the money is credited to prison welfare objects. Forty prisons are sending out parties—only men of good conduct being selected. Some Borstal boys are allowed to cycle to farms, where they eat with the farmer's family before cycling back to their institution in the evening. Farm work started at Wakefield Prison in 1935, when the authorities took over 200 acres of well-wooded land 9 miles outside the town. A hundred "star" prisoners now stay on the estate and live in hutments. Nearly half the acreage has been cleared and cropped with wheat, barley and roots.

Improved Fertiliser

Producers of basic slag are required from this week to guarantee their product as to total phosphoric acid and as to citric soluble phosphoric acid. The first requirement is already laid down in the Fertilisers and Feeding Stuffs Act, and Mr. Hudson hopes to arrange that no slag is sold less than 4 p.c. citric soluble. Hitherto, basic slags have normally had from 8 to 18½ p.c. total phosphoric acid, but owing to supply difficulties it will be necessary to use some of the slightly lower grade down to as low as 6 p.c. total

Orchestral Finance

The turnover of the Liverpool Philharmonic Society has increased from £15,000 in 1941-42 to over £42,000. With Dr. Malcolm Sargent as principal conductor, it is planned to make it the finest orchestra in the country. A deficiency of £2,427 on the year's working was not considered excessive, especially as in small halls in neighbouring towns it needs six to seven concerts a week to provide adequate remuneration for the musicians. But there is general agreement that an orchestra should not play more than four or five times a week, together with rehearsals.

"Father" of Co. Council

The Right Hon. George Lambert, who has sat in the House longer than any other member, except Mr. Lloyd George, has represented the South Molton Division since 1891, with only a short break. In 1890, when he was 24, he accepted an invitation to contest the seat as a Gladstonian liberal, but he had to wait a year until a by-election became necessary. An ex-Chairman of the Liberal Party, Mr. Lambert celebrated his 77th birthday last week, is a Privy Councillor, and was for ten years a Civil Lord of the Admiralty. He is "Father" of Devon County Council.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Hotel For Two

My information is that the Irish tourist hotels are doing a roaring trade, and that accommodation must be booked a long time in advance. But listen to this extract from a letter that I received last week:—

"I was puzzled as I stood in a fine diningroom with my back to a tall 18th century mantelpiece, and gazed across a crest of green park towards an island-studded lake.

"That afternoon my wife and I had wandered in a great wood, part of the hotel property, amongst such beauty of timber, stream and fernery as would have made any Victorian painter swoon. We could have boated, fished, swum or gone shooting. They would have given us horses had we wanted to try the jumps in the big field behind the house, but, somehow, we preferred to wander, whether in the walled kitchen garden to watch them pulling the strawberries that later on we would smother in thick cream, or in the grass-carpeted alleys of the plantation amongst the rhododendrons.

"I reflected that the food was perfect, with no nonsense about menu cards in bog-French; the bread was something to dream of. The beds by their very softness were destroying our morale. There was electricity for my bedside lamp and my razor. The bar prices were not those of a hotel, and the tariff was surprisingly low. The journey was two hours by 'bus from Dublin.

"But I was puzzled. I couldn't understand why, in the high holiday season, we were, for three whole days, the only visitors to this slice of paradise. Nobody seems to have heard of it."

The Taoiseach's Short Holiday

Mr. de Valera, I hear, has been persuaded to take a short holiday, and goes off next week to the Donegal Highlands. He will resume work after a week's respite. While most of his colleagues will be away in the country for a genuine vacation, Mr. de Valera will be busy with his secretaries every day in the Government Buildings.
